Premium Tahiti Lime: Selection for Export

Produced in the semi-arid region of Afonso Bezerra, Rio Grande do Norte, Vilac Citrus' Premium Tahiti Lime undergoes rigorous selection to meet the needs of buyers who demand high standards of quality, uniformity, and consistency. It features a uniform shell, good resistance to handling, and excellent yield, making it ideal for premium retail, chain stores, hotels, and export operations. Among its distinguishing features are batch traceability, continuous quality standards, and alignment with international market requirements.

The product's competitiveness goes beyond its Brazilian origin, being based on the discipline of its production processes. The orchards are managed with irrigation, crop planning, and selective harvesting, ensuring greater uniformity in size, color, and appearance. From field to shipment, the operation is structured with plot-by-plot control, batch standardization, and operational records that ensure predictability, consistency, and transparency—essential attributes for the international market.

DETAILS ON PRODUCTION CAPACITY, SEASONALITY AND OTHER CHARACTERISTICS:

We respect the natural cycle of the orchard, organizing harvest variations through standardization and traceability to ensure consistent quality in each batch. We deliver an attractive, uniform, and reliable lemon, ideal for partners who value consistency and long-term commitment.
