

COMPANY

Mawe, founded in 2021, has roots in the Amazon for more than 100 years. Inspired by two visionaries, like my grandfather Zezinho, who produced 4 to 5 tons of native guarana per crop on his 800-hectare farm. He founded a company to benefit guarana and sold 5 tons per crop.

The second inspiration is our matriarch, a visionary woman who founded Coopeguara, a cooperative of guarana producers in Maués. We are currently looking to expand and develop new products. They inspire and support us, believing in the success of the business and the legacy of preserving the forest and generating income for small farmers.

Guarana powder is a product derived from the seed of guarana, a plant native to the Amazon region.

Known for its stimulating and energizing properties, guarana powder is often used as a natural supplement to increase energy and concentration. In addition, it is rich in caffeine, theobromine and theophylline, substances that can provide stimulating effects similar to those of coffee. Ideal to combat fatigue and improve physical and mental performance. Produced by rural farmers in the city of Maués, Amazonas.

Our guarana powder is a superior quality product, which has the organic certification by IBD and geographical identification. This means that it is grown and processed according to the highest standards of sustainable practices, free of agrochemicals and pesticides, preserving the environmental balance. In addition, geographical identification testifies to the unique origin and quality of guarana, coming from a specific region known for its ideal conditions for growing this plant.

DETAILS ON PRODUCTION CAPACITY, SEASONALITY AND OTHER CHARACTERISTICS:

Due to seasonality, our production of wild guarana from the Amazon reaches 10 tons annually. This limited period, from October to December, guarantees the exclusivity and freshness of the product, preserving its unique quality and taste. Our commitment to sustainability and respect for the natural guarana cycle ensures that each crop is carefully grown and harvested, resulting in a genuinely special product.
