PRODUCTS

NCM 0801.22.00

Brazil nuts from the Abufari region are recognized for being among the largest in size in the entire Amazon rainforest, according to various studies, as well as being of exceptional quality. The whole process begins at the foot of the chestnut grove, with the application of good handling, collection and post-collection practices, ensuring that each stage complies with strict technical standards. The result is a nut with low humidity, minimal aflatoxin levels and outstanding flavor characteristics and crunchiness of the kernel.

Abufari adopts procedures of excellence in both extraction and agro-industrial processing, ensuring quality from the source to the end consumer. This action is based on principles that guide its mission to conserve the Amazon rainforest: environmental and ecological sustainability, respect for biodiversity and organic production, commitment to corporate social responsibility, valuing and training people, as well as constantly encouraging innovation, research and technology.
