COMPANY

Casa Moura Winery is located in the Serra da Jiboia – GO, Brazil, between 960 and 1,080 meters above sea level, with a wide temperature range, a semi-humid tropical microclimate, and soil composed of sandstone, quartzite, and schist rocks.

The productivity of Casa Moura Winery per hectare is limited, which is a key factor in ensuring the high concentration and quality of the wines. Planting occurs in small plots, with cultivation practices including double pruning and manual winter harvesting, with active vines seeking nutrients deep within the rocks. The terroir thrives in a sustainable environment, alongside 1,200 hectares of native Cerrado forest preserved by the winery, which uses lightweight bottles, utilizes energy from renewable sources, and practices conscious water consumption to reduce carbon emissions.

Our high-end wines are aromatic, balanced, with aging potential, vegan, unfiltered, not aged in wood, and without air exchange—all to preserve the natural flavors and aromas of the grape. They are full-bodied with greater intensity on the palate, featuring a complex and surprisingly layered sensory profile, with typicity that stands out from the standards, and greater expression of the grape varieties.

Casa Moura product lines:

W One: Dry red wines with an alcohol content between 13% and 14%.

Cerrado Highlands: Dry red wines with an alcohol content between 14.1% and 16%. Dry white wines with an alcohol content between 11% and 12%.

Serra da Jiboia: Dry red wines from early harvests, lighter, gastronomic and everyday. Alcohol content between 12% and 13%.

Ercidia: Sweet and semi-sweet liqueurs. Late harvest wine, without the addition of grape brandy. Alcohol content between 17% and 18%. Elegant, versatile, perfect for appetizers, desserts, and drinks.
