

HONEY AND BEE DERIVATIVES

COMPANY

Favo de Ouro Apiary was created in 1992, in Feira de Santana/BA, by Ideval José Reis Martins, veterinarian. From a traditional family in the beekeeping sector, Ideval learned from his father (beekeeping pioneer in Bahia), José Magalhães Martins, beekeeper since 1940, the art of practical beekeeping. Family tradition for more than 80 years.

Tradição de família há mais de 80 anos.

Having won several state and national awards, Favo de Ouro Apiary stands out for its products quality, tradition and commitment to the environment.

NCM 0409.00.00

The success of the company is currently due to the efficiency of its team, led by Ideval and his wife Maria Julieta Ricci, customers, suppliers and third-party companies.

We are a honey and beeswax warehouse, with Federal Inspection where we follow all the standards required by the Ministry of Agriculture, executing self-control programs in the industry with extreme care in the traceability of its batches which guarantees the consumer excellence in the products.

One of the important points of the company is the partnership with family agriculture (small producers), associations and cooperatives where, in a controlled way, all the production of the region flows. Another important point is the nature preservation encouragement, through lectures in schools and universities.

The genus Apis mellifera bees, commonly known as Africanized bees, have their origin in European and African matrices (Apis mellifera lingustica and Apis mellifera scutellata, belonging to the family Apidae, of the order Hymenoptera. They are very productive bees, but they are aggressive, so appropriate techniques are needed to handle them).

DETAILS ON PRODUCTION CAPACITY, SEASONALITY AND OTHER CHARACTERISTICS:

it is up to 100,000 kg/year.

It can be enlarged in case of necessity.

*The production can vary according to flowering.
Most productive seasons from September to April
Less productive from May to August.*
