COMPANY

Founded in 2014, COOPERSABOR (Regional Cooperative of Family Farmers and Extractivists of the Solidarity Economy) operates in the semi-arid region of Bahia, headquartered in Monte Santo. The organization strengthens family farming, quilombola communities, and land reform settlements, promoting socioeconomic development and sustainable extractivism.

Specializing in the commercialization and processing of Caatinga products, the cooperative drives the licuri chain (producing beers, oils, and sweets), in addition to native fruit pulps, honey, and goat farming. Under the Monte Sabores brand, it seeks to generate income for women and youth, combining environmental conservation, cultural appreciation, and positive social impact in the region.

PRODUCTS

More than 30 artisanal products, ranging from sweets and jams to beers, free-range eggs, and other specialties produced in the countryside. COOPERSABOR has its roots in the work developed by ARESOL and partner entities that promote income generation based on the principles of the solidarity economy in rural communities, including quilombola, settlements, and traditional communities of fundo e fecho de pasto.

Its work strengthens solidarity productive groups, mainly formed by women and youth, who develop agroecological and sustainable activities, contributing to income generation and the improvement of quality of life in rural areas.

Among the main products are those derived from agroextractivism and the processing of native fruits, such as umbu, caatinga passion fruit, and licuri, as well as fruits cultivated in productive backyards, such as acerola, mango, and guava. The cooperative also adds value to products derived from cassava and the goat and sheep production chains in the region.

Currently, COOPERSABOR is responsible for the commercialization of this diversity of products, the management of the Monte Sabores brand, and the administration of sales points located in the municipalities of Monte Santo and Itiúba, in Bahia.
